BREAKING THE CODE

Did you ever try to read something written in code? It isn't easy! Even if you have the key to the code it can take a long time to figure out the message.

That's what happens when people try to read the Bible in a language they don't know very well. They struggle to understand the words. If they cannot understand the words, they'll never know what God is saying to them. Imagine how happy they are when they receive a Bible that has been translated into their language so they can easily learn about Jesus!

Below is the same Bible verse written in two different languages:

Dama lenyu luvone gwe makumba angu, ne tjedza tje zila yangui.

Kalanga language of Botswana iwóóí káá a kpálen-son ñgáá mu pono mēni ma, gé bō a kwaa ponoóó a gē é wíberēi pono.

Kpelle language of Liberia

Use the code below to find out what the verse is written in English.

FIND THE RIGHT WORD

You are a Bible translator in Botswana working with the Shekgalagari (shi-kalah-ha-ree) Bible translation team. One day, a goat tries to walk into the office. You tell it to 'shoo', but it doesn't run away. Your team explains that the goat doesn't understand English. You have to use the Shekgalagari word and say 'tshoe' (tsway) so the goat will know what you mean.

Later a dog comes by and you tell it to 'tshoe', but it doesn't leave. Your team tells you to say 'gkaite' (kI-ay-tay) to make the dog go away.

That night, a cow gets into your yard. You yell 'tshoe' to make it move but it doesn't work. The next day, your team tells you that cows don't know that word. Cows only know 'tla' (tla).

You need to shoo some animals out of your office and your yard. They only understand Shekgalagari. Write what you would say by the picture.
